10 Mexican Artists to Watch in 2015 by Rodrigo Campuzano

Curator Rodrigo Campuzano, our man in Mexico City, selects the Mexican artists he thinks will make a big impact on the international scene in 2015.

1. Jose Dávila

Right before handing over the Sean Kelly Gallery space in New York to Marina Abramovic, Jose Dávila presented Lightness of Weight, a charming exhibition featuring his soon-to-be-famous "balance sculptures" which are comprised of massive marble slabs held together by delicate ratchet straps. His iconic minimalistic approach to art was first brought to the world's attention with his cut-out photographs, which are currently on display at the MUDAM Luxembourg Museum as part of the Art & Me exhibition. We can expect to see a lot more of Dávila's work popping up around the globe this coming year.
