

Editors. "Editors Picks: 11 Things Not to Miss in New York's Art World This Week." artnet News. February 3, 2020.

artnet® news

Editors Picks: 11 Things Not to Miss in New York's Art World This Week

This week, the Brooklyn Museum hosts a panel of female museum directors, and Susan Cianciolo has a show at Bridget Donahue Gallery.

Through Saturday, March 21

Installation view of "Julian Charrière: Towards No Earthly Pole," 2019. Courtesy of Sean Kelly Gallery.

10. "Julian Charrière: Towards No Earthly Pole" at Sean Kelly Gallery

Swiss German artist Julian Charrière immerses visitors in a nocturnal journey through the world's disappearing glacial landscapes in his second solo exhibition with the gallery. An amateur explorer and scientist, Charrière made several expeditions to Iceland, Greenland, and some of Europe's highest mountain peaks to weave together a haunting and majestic 102-minute film that hints at the sublime experience of nature. Accompanying the film are a series of his new sculptures; composed of perforated boulders, these works were inspired by geological "erratics," rocks which have been transported by glaciers to incongruous new landscapes.

Location: Sean Kelly, 475 Tenth Avenue

Price: Free

Time: Tuesday–Saturday, 10 a.m.–6 p.m.

—Katie White